

We are pleased to learn of your interest in becoming a member of the HR Policy Association, the leading organization of chief human resource officers and senior HR executives.

Membership

Membership in HR Policy Association is a corporate membership, and the company's most senior human resource executive is typically the Prime Representative in the Association.

Membership Mailings and Communications

The company's Prime Representative, Associate Representative and Washington Representative each receive three hard copy mailings and all electronic mailings.

The company may also add other company personnel to the Association's electronic mailing list at no extra charge. There is no limit to the number of company persons that can be added to this list which makes membership a highly cost effective way to stay on top of and influence human resource policy. Nearly all Association research, news and analysis is available through the HR Policy website and our electronic communications.

Membership Meetings

Invitations for Association membership meetings are extended to the company's Prime Representative and Associate Representative. Membership meetings typically attract more than 200 senior human resource executives at our March and September membership meetings.

Committees, Advisory Boards and Task Forces

Once a company has joined the Association, the Prime Representative may wish to participate on certain committees and may wish to designate others to do so. We would be pleased to discuss which committees, advisory boards, and task forces best maximize the value proposition of membership for your company.

Association Dues and Membership Requirements

For a company to become a member of HR Policy Association, it must meet the following requirements:

- Employ at least 1,500 employees;
- Have annual revenues in excess of $1 billion; and
- Be approved for membership by the Association's Board of Directors.

Membership dues are annual beginning in the quarter in which a company joins the Association. The dues schedule is as follows:

- First year: $7,000
- Following years: $12,000
